William Maiden has been detained from his duties as a teacher at Montpelier seminary for the past few days on account of a slight illness. He is confined at the home of his mother on Keith avenue.

Notice.

In conformity with prices in other towns in the state, the physicians of Barre have adopted the following minimum fee schedule:

Office calls, $1; house calls, $2; South Barre, $2; East Barre, Westerville, Graniteville, East Montpelier, $3.50; Williamstown village, $5 (intermediate or more distant points in proportion); night calls between 8 p. m. and 7 a. m., $1 more than day rate; normal obstetrical cases, including usual visits, $20 to $30 (instrumental cases, extra); administering anesthetics, $5 to $10; administering anesthetics for dentists, $5; consultations, $5; furnishing certificates for sickness or accident, $1.

This arrangement does not cover surgical cases or for special services in difficult or protracted cases, and all agree to make the above schedule of prices the minimum charge.

Card of Thanks.

To all those who comforted us during our bereavement with words of comfort and sympathy and who assisted us in every way possible, we tender our sincere thanks and appreciation. We also desire to thank those who contributed the beautiful floral offerings.

Mixing Printers' Ink and Milk.

Offhand one would not look upon printers' ink and milk as a desirable mixture, yet the suggestion of a well-defined publicity campaign by Vermont dairymen would doubtless prove that such a mixture liberally used would open new and rich fields for the dairymen of the state.

Vermont milk and cream cannot be surpassed anywhere, and there is no more reason why a publicity campaign would not have quite as distinct a value as one featuring Barre granite. Where a commodity has value, advertising will sell it. It will sell more of it in old markets and will open up new ones.

A visit to the dairy shop convinces one that the dairy interests of Vermont are in hands of keen business-like, agreeable and far-sighted men. A visit to the various dairies would reveal the fact that Vermont milk and cream are produced under excellent conditions and should command top prices anywhere. This being so, a campaign which would make Vermont milk and cream as well known as Vermont maple sugar would be an excellent thing indeed.

Surely we hope the dairy interests of the state will seize the present opportunity to increase their business. We should feel particularly happy if the time might come when in New York and Boston and other worth-while markets, discriminating buyers would insist that their milk and cream were from Vermont.

Tie up the Vermont label with the kind of milk and cream we produce here. Get people buying it, and they will presently insist upon getting nothing else.

A little publicity will go a long way, and we are quite sure that milk and printers' ink will indeed be an excellent mixture when the milk is of the Vermont variety.—Burlington News.
